RAIL LEADERS ARE CALLED IN BY ROOSEVELT

Will Discuss Emergency
Legislation to Help
Troubled Carriers

FRAMES PROGRAM AND IS SET TO ACT

President Believes Government Should Lend Support

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, April 1.—Heads of the nation's railroad system and labor leaders were summoned to the white house today by President Roosevelt to talk over emergency legislation providing for a federal co-ordinator to bring the carriers out of their troubles.

Mr. Roosevelt had before him a carefully worked out program framed by transportation authorities after days of examination and study.

Ready To Act
He is ready to act. But he wants first to talk it over with the representatives of those most vitally interested—the investors, the operators and the men who depend on the roads for a living.

The President called to his side the men responsible for drafting the program of action—Secretary Roper, Joseph B. Eastman of the Interstate Commerce commission, and W. W. Splawn, and A. A. Berle, rail experts.

Others invited to the white house for the late afternoon parley included Carl Gray, president of the Union Pacific; Donald Richberg, counsel for the Railway Labor Executives association; Henry Bruere, New York financial authority; Frederick H. Prince, and Philip Stockton, of Boston; Raymond Moley, assistant secretary of state and economic adviser to the president; Robert Jackson, associate of Prince; J. J. Pelley, president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford; and F. H. Williamson, president of the New York Central.

Words Readjustment
There are more than $11,000,000,000 in railroad bonds outstanding for a specific period. But he also wants the roads to readjust their heavy financial structures. He thinks a federal co-ordinator should direct the drive for economies to put the national system on a sounder basis.

Methods of Saving
Revealed by Grange
"Ways I Have Learned to Save Because of the Depression" were discussed by members of Salem grange at roll call at a meeting Friday evening at the hall, Depot rd.

J. U. Thomas, the master, gave a talk on "What Would Be the Advantage or Disadvantage of Requiring the Farmer to Secure a License." Several other members also talked on this subject.

The theme of J. W. Yates' talk was "How Can the Farmer Out-Production and Keep Up the Fertility and Value of His Farm."

Mrs. Hannah Baker presented an original humorous paper, "The Salem Grange Lightning." Songs were included on the program.

Meeting in two weeks the members will observe Good Friday.

These numbers were included: One act play, "Getting Ready for a Visit," Don Miller, Homer Gray, Jr., and Earl Salmen; with selections by Clarence Wehrt, with Ruth Venable at the piano; talk, "What Does Our School Teach Our Boys and Girls Besides What They Get from the Text Books," W. P. Sangree; "March" by boys who are officers in the juvenile grange, Junior Rhodes, Lee Holloway, Donald Fox, Curtis E. H. Robert Sanders, Wilbur Sangree, song, Mr. and Mrs. Sangree, with Miss Venable playing the accompaniment; talk, "Grange History," by Louis Starbuck, master; talk, "Brotherhood and Sisterhood of the Grange," C. D. Carr; poem and ball talk, Bert Schafer; talk, "Buy American," C. W. Mead; playlet, Clarence Wein-gart and Ernest Kamper.

Smith grange will hold its meeting at Goshen grange all Monday evening and the Goshen team will give the service work.

At a meeting of Goshen grange in four weeks the men officers will give the program.

The juvenile grange held an interesting meeting, after which the members played games.

School Board Will Discuss Finances
The financial situation of Salem public schools will be the featured topic when members of the board of education hold their April meeting at the High School Monday night.

Some action will probably be taken towards the issuance of refunding bonds to enable the board to pay principal or interest on bonds maturing this year.

The board also expects to be able to set a definite date for the closing of the 1932-33 term.

Sunday Night

Dr. W. H. McMaster, president of Mt. Union college, Alliance, widely known in this district, will give the address at a union service of the Christian, Presbyterian and Methodist Episcopal churches at 7:30 p. m. Sunday at the Christian church.

This service will mark the beginning of a two weeks spiritual emphasis campaign and pre-learn services arranged by the pastors of these churches, Rev. C. F. Evans, Rev. R. D. Walter and Rev. S. A. Mayer.

As a prelude to the services, the churches this week sent out groups to visit persons who had expressed a preference, or are in some way connected with the churches, to talk to them about uniting with the church.

Special music for the service will be arranged by the choir of the church at which the service is held.

Rev. F. C. Lake, pastor of the Lisbon Christian church, Rev. J. V. Stephens, Alliance, and Rev. P. E. Secrest, East Liverpool, are scheduled to speak during the campaign.

On Wednesday and Thursday nights of the second week a religious play, "St. Claudius" will be given at the Salem High school auditorium by a cast made up of members of the three churches.

On April 14, Good Friday, each church will hold its own communion service. Easter Sunday, April 16, will be commemorated with special services.

The men who are officers of Goshen grange arranged an entertaining program for a meeting Friday evening at the hall, northwest of Salem.

Goebbels Tosses Covert
Warning to London

(By Associated Press)
BERLIN, April 1.—A one-day boycott on the means of livelihood of all Jews in Germany began at 10 a. m. today.

German stores union issued an appeal to all members coming under the boycott, ban to close their stores for the day.

Dr. Joseph Goebbels, cabinet minister of propaganda, keyed the campaign with a warning that unless "the foreign atrocity campaign ceases absolutely" the boycott will be resumed next Wednesday. He promised, however, "a return to normal" if this condition was fulfilled.

Cut To One Day
A government order shrank the National Socialist party's proposed indefinite boycott to one day's duration for the time being and it remained to be seen which of opposing groups in the government and party would be victorious in the end.

Only small comfort was derivable from the present limitations for a half million distracted German Jews who to all practical purposes already are ostracized socially and professionally.

There were so many tragic aspects to the situation that the boycott was only another bitter draught.

A raid by Nazis in Germany on the home there of Professor Einstein was reported some days ago. No mention was made of his daughter.

VETS' CUT GOES TO ROOSEVELT

$400,000,000 Is Lopped
Annually From Federal Payments

WASHINGTON, April 1.—An executive order lopping $400,000,000 annually off federal benefits paid to war veterans was ready for President Roosevelt's signature today and he was expected to act before the day was over.

After extended conferences with leaders of veterans organizations, Lewis W. Douglas, director of the budget, took the order to the White House yesterday. The reductions became effective July 1.

In addition to these savings—counted on heavily by the chief executive to reach a balance in the federal budget—Douglas said it was planned to save another $50,000,000 through a purely administrative process of handling funds being piled up for the full payment in 1945 of the soldiers' bonus.

Veterans' leaders said they had been unable to get any concessions in their conferences with Douglas and Frank T. Hines, veterans administrator.

It was indicated that even some of the war incurred disabilities will be slashed under the order, depending on the nature of the disabilities and the allowance category into which they fall.

Publication of the order was expected later in the day after Mr. Roosevelt had signed.

Piero Recovering

LISBON, April 1.—Edgar J. Piero, tax map expert in the office of County Auditor John H. Irwin, who has been off duty on account of illness for several months, made his first trip to his office Friday afternoon.

Ohio Village Does Chores by Candle Light In Strike On Electric Rates

Protest Goes to Public Utilities As Windham Disagrees With Company Proposal

(By Associated Press)
WARREN, O., April 1.—Flickering rays of oil lamps and candles signalled today a message of protest against rates of the Windham Electric company.

Lanterns swung from the hands of farmers busy at morning chores. Housewives stared at their griddle cakes in the dim rays that penetrated smoky lamp chambers. Elder daughters tidied the bedrooms amidst dark shadows cast by candle light.

"We used oil lamps years ago and we can use them again," was the sentiment expressed by 184 rural patrons of the company as they instituted their "strike" for lower charges. They claimed to represent 65 per cent of the company's customers in three townships.

"We'll see this thing through to the finish," added A. G. Rood, wealthy Phalanx flour mill operator and chairman of the grievance committee that carried the demand for reduced rates before the company. "Our protest to the public utilities commission of Ohio and request for a hearing are on the way to Columbus."

A counter proposal of the electric company was scorned by the committee. C. M. Thrasher, manager of the company, predicted, however, many of the 184 would withdraw their shut-off orders when they receive their bills for March service, mailed today and showing a reduction from the rates that caused the protest—six cents per kilowatt hour plus a $2 a month service charge.

The consumers' committee has asked a service charge of $1 a month for all customers, both village and rural and a graduated scale of five cents a kilowatt for the first 40 hours, three cents for the next 120 and two cents for any over 160.

The former rate was 3 cents a kilowatt hour. With the tenth of a cent reduction, Miller ordered the monthly service charge reduced from 30 to 15 cents and the minimum monthly charge from 75 to 60 cents.

Potters Prepare To Select Leaders

EAST LIVERPOOL, April 1.—G. A. Harrison will oppose James M. Duffy, president of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters, for re-election, a tabulation of primary ballots showed today.

Both live here. Oscar Dale of Trenton, N. J., will oppose John D. McGilivray, secretary, of East Liverpool, in the run-off election to be held in May. The election drew votes from 7,500 union potters.

Police Put O. K. On Salem Beer Sale; Council to Discuss Brew On Tuesday

"Nothing From Our Standpoint to Stop 'Em," Says
Stoffer; Several Seeking Licenses

The stage is being set for the sale of 3.2 per cent beer in Salem next Friday, April 7, but the procedure to be followed in obtaining licenses was a matter of some uncertainty to city officials.

Anyone planning to sell beer next Friday—and Police Chief Ralph Stoffer said today that there's nothing from a police standpoint to hinder them from doing so—probably would be able to obtain a license by writing direct to L. L. Paris, Columbus director of Gov. George White's new beer commission, but no other definite information has been provided locally.

Says Ordinance Illegal
Police Chief Stoffer said today that, if they are granted licenses by the state commission, nothing can or will be done to stop sales by any Salem persons. His opinion coincides with that of City Solicitor Cecil K. Scott who already has ruled that the city ordinance banning the sale of liquors or their manufacture, has been made illegal by the passage by the Ohio legislature of the new beer bill.

"If the new state law is complied with, I see no reason for any police action against those selling the beer," Stoffer said.

Similar announcement was issued today by Police Chief Hugh McDermott of East Liverpool. The Pottery City has what is believed to be the county's only beer-making plant which is speeding operations for the manufacture of the new brew and expects to start deliveries the first day the law is placed into effect.

Several Seek Licenses
Stoffer said that it has been reported to him that several Salem business men are considering the sale of the beer but have been unable to get definite information regarding licenses because of the uncertainty of procedure.

Additional action on beer sales in Salem is anticipated when city council meets at city hall at 7:30 p. m. next Tuesday. Solicitor Scott plans to recommend the repeal of the city liquor ordinance now in effect, although, he says, this action is not necessary.

If the measure is not repealed, an amending ordinance, granting permission to sell the 3.2 brew, will be considered while some manner in which the city will be able to benefit, financially, either through issuance of local licenses or other action, from the sales, will also be discussed.

Columbiana County Leads Others in Whittling Debts

Bonded Indebtedness Now Less Than Salem's; One of Very Few In State to Make Reductions

Columbiana county holds the honor position among the 88 counties in Ohio with respect to bonded indebtedness.

It has jumped from 37th to first place in proportion to the valuations of its properties.

And furthermore, County Auditor John H. Irwin points out with pardonable pride it is one of only two or three counties in the state which has been able to reduce its indebtedness during the last year.

The total bonded indebtedness of Columbiana county—now below the $300,000 mark—is less than that of the city of Salem.

Reduction of the county's indebtedness during the last year included the retirement of $4,000 in bonds issued in 1912 for relief purposes. Many times that amount was paid out in interest during the 20 years since these bonds were issued.

Retirement of these bonds comes at a psychological moment, Irwin declares, to impress upon city and county officials, as well as taxpayers, the fact that money raised through issuance of bonds for relief work proves to be an expensive venture.

The county auditor is opposed to issuing any more bonds for any purpose until the present bonded indebtedness can be materially reduced.

"How are we going to pay our debts if we continue to increase our bond issues?" he asks.

Largely through the auditor's influence, funds have been allotted to the county and its subdivisions for relief work without the penalty of paying interest and returning the principal.

Ever since he entered the auditor's office, Irwin has endeavored to practice economy and to work out systematic procedures which would save the county money.

The greatest show of economy was made in the recent reappraisal of real estate in the county. A new system for this work, evolved by the auditor after much planning, brought the cost of the appraisal down to $56,000. Seven years ago the appraisal work was done at a cost of $120,000.

So efficient and equitable was the new system that the state auditor sent two experts to Lisbon to study Irwin's plan. He was highly complimented by these officials and the Columbiana county system was copied by other counties.

Recently County Auditor Irwin as a member of a committee of the county auditors

CHARGES FILED IN CARROLLTON AGAINST GUNMEN

Quintet Accused of Shooting with Intent to Kill;
Deputy Wounded

BALLANTINE WILL ASK INDICTMENTS

Prisoners Confess Designs
On Two Banks, Authorities Reveal

Said by police to have admitted plans for holdups of Kensington and Alliance banks, five Alliance men, captured after a spectacular gun battle and chase through swamps and woods south of Kensington, today were charged by Carroll county authorities in Carrollton with shooting with intent to kill and operating a motor vehicle without the owner's consent.

Reports Confession
Sheriff John McFadden of Carrollton reported this morning that the men had confessed to him that they were enroute to Kensington to attempt to hold up and rob the State bank after which they had planned to go to Alliance and attempt a holdup of the Mount Union bank of that city.

They are Lewis Nagy, 28, of 625 South Seneca, ave; Emmett Coss, 31, of Linden ave; James Dawson, 33, of 732 Garwood st; John Cutting, 34, of 434 South Arch ave, and Alfred Johnson, 38, Alliance rd., all of Alliance.

The shooting charges are the outcome of the attempts of the five alleged gunmen to "shoot it out" with Columbiana county authorities when capture appeared imminent on the Kensington-Hanoverton rd, 11 miles south of Salem. Deputy Sheriff George Hayes, 37, of East Liverpool, was wounded in the forehead when struck by a shotgun slug.

Hayes was reported in an improved condition at the Salem City hospital today.

Will Ask Indictments
Sheriff Frank Ballantine of Salem said today that John indictments charging the men with shooting with intent to kill will be asked of the Columbiana county grand jury when it convenes in Lisbon on Monday, April 17. While McFadden said that the quintet will be turned over to authorities of Columbiana county, they were still being held under heavy guard today in Carrollton jail. No date was set for their arraignment. It has not been definitely decided in which county the arraignment shall take place.

Cutting is suspected by authorities of firing the shot which wounded the deputy. It was revealed in questioning of the five men last night that he had been handling the shotgun during the battle. Five revolvers and the shotgun were confiscated by authorities.

The automobile in which the men were traveling is said to have been stolen from F. W. Mohl, 2055 South Seneca ave, Alliance, on March 8, a few days after the shooting.

Talks Turkey

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., April 1.—This fellow Roosevelt never gets through surprising us. We just find out now that he speaks French fluently.

That's the second linguistic surprise he has handed us. The other was the night the banks closed. We knew he could speak English but we didn't know he could talk "American" till that night.

In fact, he has got three speaking accomplishments. He is the only guy who can talk "turkey" to the Senate.

Every man gets an opportunity once in a lifetime. That little country banker in New York named Morgan, has his now. If he just steps up to the Senate witness stand and can show the boys where he has a business and not a racket, will he can step down a hero. But if he can't, the boat sails Wednesday.

Yours,
Will Rogers

HOUSE OF MORGAN

It is truly said that the house of Morgan, less colorfully known as J. P. Morgan & Co., has been an example for America's financiers. It has been leader in many movements. Its practices, because they were the methods of the leader, have been copied widely.

There is reason to believe, therefore, that when investigators get into the record of Morgan transactions they will find a vast deal of interest to the country at this particular time when it is calling its financiers on the carpet for an accounting. Some of the secrets of the inner temple may be highly illuminating.

Largely through the ability of its founder, John Pierpont Morgan, the firm which still bears his name and now is controlled by his son, won and has kept a place as one of the most powerful banking houses in the world. The stories of its transactions in the last century and in this one are lurid adventures in finance embellished with eight and nine place figures.

The house of Morgan carried through the formation of the United States Steel Corp., numerous railroad reorganizations and shipbuilding. It has been a clearing house for international finance—an agent of governments. So infinitely has its power been extended that no one today can say definitely how many enterprises it controls by the magic influence of its vast resources.

To the public and to a large part of the financial community its activities are mysterious. Legend and fact have combined to build up around the name of J. P. Morgan a glamor of financial manipulation on a scale too great for conception by ordinary mortals who think of a thousand dollars as a considerable sum of money. It is probable that some of that glamor now is to be removed by inquisitive investigators working under the authority of the United States senate. If the house of Morgan has nothing to hide, it will gain by a process which will make it less feared and more respected. If it has records it cannot reveal honorably, it and its officials richly deserve the shame which has come to other trustees of money who didn't keep faith.

New York Day by Day

By O. O. McIntyre.

NEW YORK, April 1.—Purely personal piffle: I love to lick the glazed paper, they wrap around fried chicken. Mrs. Irvin Cobb has the most engaging speaking voice I know. Eugene O'Neill's plays always seem to need editing. With few exceptions, my confidence in dog hospitals is limited.

I've been speaking for years to three men I do not know from Adam's old ox. Conrad Veidt is the sort of looking villain I'd like to be when I go in for villainy. I'm too old and no account to quarrel. They fed me spiked punch at my first dance. And I went home crying.

Cabbage is the only dish that does not agree with me. But I always eat it. I never heard a polli-parrot say the wrong thing. I like to pronounce the name of that Russian actress—Balanova. I know now what was the matter with my Peru bond! Was I a sucker!

I'd rather spend an evening with Ted Healy and his stooges than with George Bernard Shaw. Isham Jones sounds like slipping suddenly off a curb. There's something especially charming about Danish women. One of the most efficient kidders I ever knew was the late Jim Quirk.

I feel important when anyone calls me "Boss." George Arliss has a fascinating walk. When I buy anything in leather, I sniff it first. The play I've enjoyed most this year is "One Sunday Afternoon." At last, they glorify a wife instead of the keptee. I've given dogs to 20 children and everyone has turned out a rare pet. Ring Lardner writes the drollest of all letters.

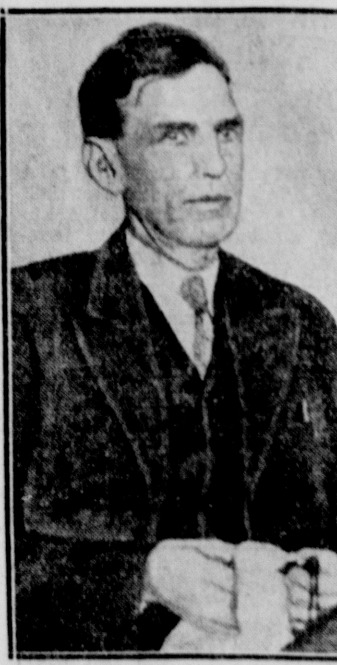

At sea, I think I'd like to be a seaman. On land, I don't see how they bear it. Major Joe Hartfield gave me the only patent lead pencil that ever worked. Only one tailor has ever made me a vest that fits. The other go womp. Wretch that I am, I try to trip people who do not thank me for standing in the theater. And, man-and-boy, I've tripped some folk you've read about. No other folk has produced so many idols with clay feet. Damon Runyon writes the best and most true-to-life short stories about life on Broadway. The best financial advice I ever received was from Horace Rizzo, a bank president in my Missouri home town of 2,000.

The most restful spot I know, to eat, is a little Armenian place called Arakel's. No odor is so delightful as frying catfish. I skim through Arthur Brisbane's column first thing. In a morning paper. Envelopes from the U. S. Income Tax bureau make me flush. The mildest gentleman I ever met was J. M. Barrie. I have never doubted that Radio City will eventually be a success. Nor do I think the Empire building is in vain. Some day it will fill.

The man who discusses old-time New York most entertainingly is James Moore, the restaurant man. Frank Sullivan furnishes more belly laughs than any other humorist. George Ade's personal letters usually are on yellow ruled paper. I can have more fun making people who have had too much to drink try to pronounce, "Eunucate in-consequentiality." The day all the banks closed, I couldn't write a line.

I know a lady who grows faint when Lawrence Tibbett tops a high note. I married the only childhood sweetheart I ever had. The nastiest feet use of the Oxonian accent is who said I sneered at the Social Register because I could not get in it. Fancy! A letter that made me sob out loud was from a 16-year-old blind girl in Massachusetts. Brock Pemberton is, to my notion, the most astute theatrical producer.

Scottsboro Judge

Judge James E. Horton is shown as he appeared in court at Decatur, Ala., to preside over the new trial of the nine negroes in the famous Scottsboro case. The nine were convicted of the charge of assaulting two white girls. They were sentenced to death but the United States Supreme Court ordered a new trial.

tion for classical music is for Gershwin's "Rhapsody in Blue" and Ravel's "Bolero." The most perfect use of the Oxonian accent is that of Alfred Shirley, in radio broadcasts now and then.

The home I like best around New York is near Greenwich, Ct., with a moat. H. T. Webster once sent me, as a gag, a 7-foot ferocious alligator, from Florida. The only paintings I ever really longed for were westerns, by Charlie Russell. When I'm sulking, which is about twice a year, my wife praises some column I have written, and I bed right out again.

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, April 2

Sunday's horoscope is a favorable one for mystical, occult and all singular pursuits and vocations, emphasizing angles of subtlety, secrecy and intrigue. There may be elements of strategem to cope with, also minor delays and disappointments.

Those whose birthday it is may encounter a year in which intrigue, diplomacy and shrewdness may advance the interests, although it would be well to be on the alert for secret or subtle influences. There may be a spirit of heightened enterprise and initiative, which will have its reactions on a lively personal state of affairs. A child born on this day may be bold, progressive and constructive, but prone to peculiar moods or traffic with the unusual or mysterious.

Notable nativity: Rachmaninoff, composer.

For Monday, April 3

Monday's astrological forecast hints of difficulties and dangers for those in the employment of others. It would be well to avoid friction and contention with those in places of authority. A firm check should be kept on tongue and temper. Impetuous moves may cause anxiety. There may be some offsetting benefits or pleasures particularly in the matter of small financial gains.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which there may be some unsatisfactory or inharmonious conditions in employment. It would be wise to deal tactfully with those in power. Also to keep sharp reign on tongue or temper and beware impetuous actions. Some gain or advancement is predicted, possibly with increase of money or enhanced popularity with those in position. A child born on this day may be disposed to be quick, hasty and impulsive, thereby putting in jeopardy its employment. Notable nativity: Margaret Anglin, actress.

What Others Say

IS IT POSSIBLE?

One of the strangest things that has happened in Washington since the new administration came into power was revealed in a little item relating to the department of commerce. It said:

"Secretary Roper, in an address recently, predicted a diminishing of the activities of the department of commerce. He asserted activities of a doubtful value would be eliminated and that employees of doubtful efficiency would be discharged. It was his first speech as secretary of commerce."

Now, this is real news. It is in the class of that where the man bites the dog. For a department head to admit that any of the activities of his department are not essential and voluntarily to take action to reduce them is almost unknown in the history of government.

Secretary Roper apparently has caught the spirit of the times. More strength to him, and may other departmental chiefs emulate the example he has set—Newark Advocate.

Science Again Scores

A few days ago I told you about the great advances made in the study of kidney diseases. It was pointed out that positive knowledge as to the condition of the kidneys can be determined by certain examinations. These include urinalysis, a study of the blood, special kidney function tests, and X-ray examinations.

Today, I want to tell you a little more about the kidneys. I am confident that many of my readers are not exactly sure as to where the kidneys are located and how they function. Perhaps few realize that life can continue in the absence of one kidney. Even half of one kidney can carry on the work of the body if proper care and attention are given.

As everybody knows, the kidneys are located in the back part of the abdominal cavity. Contrary to common belief, they are not placed high in the back. They are found about two inches above the crest of the hip bones, one on each side of the spine. In rare instances babies are born with more than two kidneys, and others with only one.

These important organs are about four and one-half inches in length, two inches in width, and one and a half inches in thickness. In the adult, they weigh about four and one-half ounces.

The kidneys are situated very close to other organs of the abdomen, but are separated from them by a deep layer of fat. This serves as a protection against blows and other injuries.

Normally, the kidneys are anchored in their place, and are capable of little movement. In some individuals one or both of the kidneys may be movable and then we have what is called a "floating kidney." This is most common in very thin persons or others who have a lack of abdominal fat with little support for the kidneys. The kidney can be kept in its proper place by putting on fat or by wearing a supporting corset.

Causes of Trouble
I am frequently asked what causes kidney disease. It can be traced occasionally to an injury of some sort. A common cause is damage to the kidneys from scarlet fever, typhoid fever, influenza, diphtheria, measles, chicken pox, lobar pneumonia, or acute rheumatic fever. The high fever of these diseases throws poisons into the blood and when they reach the kidney damage results.

Too little attention is given to the health of the kidneys. Bear in mind that infected and diseased tonsils, diseased teeth, sinuses, and other localized infections, are a constant menace to the kidneys.

Depend on a well balanced diet with plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables. Drink at least six to eight glasses of water a day. Regular elimination assists the kidneys in ridding the body of poisonous substances. Daily bathing cleanses the skin and aids the kidneys in their work.

WATH FOR ANNOUNCEMENT!

"THE LOVE TRAP"

by ROBERT TERRY SHANNON

COPYRIGHT BY KING FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

CHAPTER I

Mary stared at the newspaper incredulous that such a tragedy could be an actual fact. How could Buck Landers be dead, when she had been with him last night — when he was coming this morning to —

What was he coming for? Oh, yes, he wanted to take her to the marriage license bureau. "Neighbors in the building," she was reading, "heard violent quarreling in the Guido woman's apartment about 2 o'clock in the morning. Screams. Police were called. Her body, bleeding but still alive, was stretched on the floor beside the dead form of her former lover. Police scout love pact. . . . Believe jealousy motivated murder, and woman's attempted suicide. Little hope held for her recovery. . . . Investigation. . . . Coroner. . . . Inquest. . . . Death of Landers — sensational shock to Broadway and sporting world. . . ."

The words were swimming before Mary's eyes; if she would be able to read the article through calmly, it might not seem so terrible. . . . What a preposterous mistake for the police to make! Of course Buck Landers wasn't dead! Gradually, however, her reason was forced to believe the truth, but it was not yet a fact in her deeper mind. She could close her eyes and see Landers now—he was as much alive as he had ever been!

"The body was removed to a funeral home on Upper Broadway. . . . The landlady was clutching her arm, beseeching her attention with terror-stricken impetuosity. A bulky woman in a loose housedress. . . . A vernal face, livid, yet somewhat like land. . . ."

"God forgive him, dead in his casket!" the creature was moaning. "God, forgive me, too—do you think he will live, Miss Kennedy? I mean no sin, but he came to me like Satan, with his money and tempted me. Oh, he was a smooth man—and what did only two or three letters matter? He said to me that all was fair in love and war, and there was a hundred dollars apiece for each letter. . . ."

"I don't know what you're talking about," Mary told her. "All this babble. . . ."

"I'm telling you he came to the house while you were at work and made my acquaintance," the woman half sobbed. "Oh, he was such a dignified gentleman, and ready with his money. I'm confessing to you that he paid me to steal away the letters that came to you from Cuba. I asked him why, and he said never mind—that somebody was writing you that he didn't want you to hear from for a while. I could tell he was sweet on you himself, and I didn't think it was much harm—and now he is dead. . . ."

The woman's words gradually burned themselves into Mary's consciousness; her dazed indifference gave way to astonishment—to incredulous realization that Steve had written her, after all. But he was married now—what could his letters matter? Then, unexpectedly, a gust of excitement seized her with whirlwind wildness.

"You stole my letters! Where are they? Give them back to me or I'll shake you to pieces! Oh, how terrible!"

The woman lifted an arm across her face as though to shield herself. "Don't be so hard on me, for Heaven's sake! I've got your letters in my dresser. I'm getting them for you—give me a minute. . . ."

Ah, but it was impossible for Mary to read those leaves out of the dead past with any calmness. She tore the envelope open and rifled the written sheets with trembling fingers, her eyes scanning the pages with lightning speed, in search of the core of the truth. Her heart almost stopped beating. . . . There was no hint of unfaithfulness here at all. Each page was warm, glowing with Steve's assurance of the love that was the very fire of his whole life! She sank to the sofa and tried to steady herself, while she drank in this current that came straight from his heart.

The first letter—Eileen Calvert had arrived on the plantation and he was acutely embarrassed at the situation. It made him feel like a rotter to accept employment from this girl, and give her, in return, the chance to play around with him. It made him feel like a kept man! It was practically impossible for him to retain his self-respect and listen to the not so subtle campaign of Eileen. The girl seemed positively to be in the grip of an egotistical and erotic mania. . . .

"I didn't know such an awkward situation was possible on this earth. . . . but don't you worry. . . ."

Her eyes leaped to the second and last letter, fevered to learn the ultimate truth. It was brief.

"I'm all washed up on this job down here," it read. "The woman angle got too much for me, and I had to throw up the sponge. I quit—walked out flat. I don't want to say any bad things about Eileen, but the poor girl is half crazy. It's a case of a rich girl who has had all she wanted in life, and when she is denied one thing, she goes off her nut. There's a whole lot of vanity and jealousy in her make-up that I never suspected in the past. The rest of her family is O. K. but Eileen seems to have a screw loose somewhere—and I'm the goat. . . ."

"So I've quit, and in the future, I am going to accept favors from nobody. Since I've been down here, I've been able to get a new slant on myself. I haven't ever accomplished a darn thing by my own efforts. Buck Landers sent me through college, and the Calvert family sort of adopted me socially. It's a dangerous thing for a fellow to have things come too easily—he gets to expect life on a silver platter—and life isn't that way. It's a hard, rough, and tumbled scrap every inch of the way, and the softie hasn't a chance on earth. Cuba taught me that much at least. . . ."

"Another thing—I am frightfully ashamed of the showing I've made since I've met you. When Landers had me tied up that time, it was you—a girl—that took a gun and drove off those roughnecks. You rescued me, and the Calvert family took care of me and paid for my doctors and nurses. Well, at least, I've mailed Mr. Calvert a check, covering that debt! But I've had a sore conscience ever since I took this job on Eileen's plantation. . . ."

was at line of least resistance to accept it. Well, I'm through now. There's such a thing as a fellow getting wise to himself. . . ."

"But I'm saving the best news for the last. While I was waiting for the train here in Camaguey, I met Mr. Veker, who is the director of the American Sugar Company—the big people—in the station. It happened that I'd ridden over the plantation with him one day and we got a little friendly. I told him I had quit my job, and made a straight bid to him for another. I'm crazy about the sugar business, Mary, and I told him I was going to give my life to it. I offered to take anything he had—even a laborer's job. Well, I had something a whole lot better—for you and me. His company is starting some experimental plant in Southern California and they are dickering with the Mexican government for some concessions down there. And I got a job, darling—I got one whole of a job! I'm on my way back to New York with a expenses paid, and I'm going out to California to take charge of one of their new stations. It's a chance of a lifetime, and Mr. Veker says I won't have to wait long for a promotion if I deliver. The salary is big enough to support us both comfortably! Now here's the bride, I land in New York—and the first day, you're going to be Mrs. Steven Moore. Then, bingo! We'll have our wedding tour clear across the good old United States to our new job and to our new home down where the sugar cane. Am I happy? I am! I'll be in New York when the good old steamship Fairfax docks on the eighth of this month. Be on the dock and get your lips ready for a million kisses! . . ."

WV, Sunday the eighteenth was tomorrow! Steve was going to land in New York tomorrow, and they were going to California together! But how could that be, when he was married to Eileen Calvert?

Was it a dream, or had there been a cablegram from Cuba that said he had married Eileen Calvert? Mary turned, trembling, to the landlady.

"Did I, or did I not, get a cablegram from Cuba last night?"

The woman's tallow face went to pieces. Tears were running down her cheeks.

"I tell you about the cablegram. Mr. Landers brought it here himself anything come up, he said I was to tell you I had received it from the messenger boy, and forgot to tell you. Dearie, I hope there wasn't any bad news in it. . . ."

What did it matter about this poor creature's silly words! Nothing in God's world mattered to Mary—except that Steve still loved her. . . . that he was going back! How miraculously impetuous was the steel-strong arm of true love! The almost mad, cunning Landers had been no more final, in its ultimate effect, than a cloud of fog that had been lifted and scattered by the pure and serene rays of an eternal sun. There was no happiness on earth, any realized slowly, except love. . . . and love revealed itself to her understanding as a responsibility, extending down through the years till the end. . . .

HITLER'S BOYCOTT
OPEN HOLY DOOR
MEN AT WORK

By Arthur Brisbane
(Copyright, 1933 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

MIAMI, Fla. — Berlin describes Nazi-Hitler preparations for a nation-wide boycott of Germany's Jewish citizens, that Nazis call "the beginning of a war on the entire Jewish race of the world." That is not easy to say, not easy to carry out. Germany's government, not expressly approving the boycott, stood yesterday while "Nazi storm troopers" cleared Berlin courts of Jewish judges and lawyers, among others driving out the chief justice, Kurt Soelling.

THE HITLER party announces that it will boycott all Jews, their business, merchandise, and the boycott will include "converted Jews."

All but the ignorant know that this will hurt Germany far more than it will injure the Jews.

And all but the ignorant know that no boycott planned by a temporary dictator can inflict "world-wide injury on the Jewish people."

That which could not be done by wholesale murdering, torturing and other atrocities of the middle ages will not be done now.

TODAY the holy door of St. Peter's in Rome will be opened by Pope Pius. With a hammer of gold he will tap the black marble cross in the center of the walled-in door. The heavy masonry undetermined in advance will give way, and the door, usually opened only once in 25 years, will be opened to commemorate the 1900th anniversary of the passion, death and resurrection of Christ.

The opening of this holy door, one of the most solemn and important rituals in the church, marks the beginning of the present holy year, declared by the pope.

The doors will be washed clear of masonry debris with holy water, especially blessed, and dried with a special cloth. All religions will unite with the pope in hoping that this year will see the end of a depression that has afflicted the whole world.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT has signed the bill to put 250,000 men at work in national forests, replanting, protecting, etc. The program might include planting trees by scattering seeds from airplanes on barren hillsides and burnt-over tracts. That was done in France after the big war.

The administration, seeking work for the unemployed in undertaking that would show a profit, should consider necessity of a ship canal across Florida connecting the Atlantic ocean with the Gulf of Mexico. Some facts are submitted.

The enterprise would pay for itself, principal, interest and operating cost, over a period of 50 years. In addition it would produce savings for the people of this nation, equaling more than 20 per cent of construction cost every year for all time.

IT WOULD PUT 17,000 men to work on the canal for four years, and 30,000 more for 18 months in manufacturing areas. The Florida canal would be used by twice as many ships as now use the Panama canal, and provide a vital link in the canal system from Boston to Mexico.

This canal, to cost $118,000,000, would save thousands of ships the long journey around Key West and the southern end of Florida.

This canal would bring all the Gulf coast nearer to the big cities and manufacturing centers of the east. The thing ought to be done, and congressmen of states most directly interested, and of all the 37 states that come within the trade area of the gulf and the Atlantic, should see to it.

Holy Year Opened In Vatican City

(By Associated Press)

VATICAN CITY, April 1.—Wielding a golden hammer, Pope Pius broke down the holy door of St. Peter's this morning and inaugurated the holy year in commemoration of the 1900th anniversary of the passion, death and resurrection of Christ.

Nearly 30 cardinals, royalty, diplomats, the Roman aristocracy, and high prelates from many nations saw the holy door of brick, loosened yesterday, fall away when the pope struck it thrice with the hammer of solid gold.

A great throng crowded close to the lines of papal guardmen and Swiss guards. Most of them were unable to see anything, since the ritual of the holy door was held in the portico, outside the cathedral proper. They later, however, saw the pope at close range, when the pontiff entered the Babalica to impart his blessing.

Pope Pius' opening of another entrance to the enormous basilica, an entrance usually thrown open only once every 25 years, was symbolic of the stream of several hundred thousand pilgrims the Vatican expects will flow into St. Peter's during the holy year.

The ritual he used dated back to the time of the Borgias, Pope Alexander VI, who decreed a holy year in 1500 A. D.

KALISPELL, MONT.—Transmitting and receiving radio sets for the forest service are to be installed during the coming summer, for the purpose of sending fire messages in forests without telephone service.

Talks were given by Mrs. Harry Parsons, who told of her recent trip to California, H. C. Hayland and Charles Barnes.

"A Last Day of School" was featured and those who had part in it were: L. E. Allen and son, Wade, Mrs. Edgar Derr, Mrs. Grant Eiton, Mrs. Charles O'Connell, Joel Cobb, Mrs. Baker, Mrs. R. W. Sharpnack and Mrs. Riley, Miss Mary Herbert, teacher of the class, took the role of "teacher" for the "school."

Portsmouth Probes Two Poison Deaths

(By Associated Press)

PORTSMOUTH, April 1.—The mysterious death by poison of two young women today puzzled police seeking to determine whether they died in a "suicide pact" or were murdered.

The bodies of the women, Mrs. Dorothy White McCormick, 19-year-old divorcee, and Miss Muriel Howard, 18, were found in bed in an apartment they had rented but a day before.

Although there was no evidence of a struggle, a police theory of murder was strengthened by the assertion of two young men that the door was ajar when they found the bodies yesterday. A roomer in the building said he heard moans in the suite Thursday night but did not investigate when he got no response to a knock on the door.

Champion Bar Maid

To this 25-year-old young woman, Sylvia Dean, secretary to Representative Carroll Beedy, of Maine goes the honor of being the youngest woman ever admitted to the bar of the U. S. Supreme Court. She was but 22 years old when she was admitted to the bar of the District Supreme Court, likewise earning the "Baby" championship of that bar.

association of Ohio, went before the tax committee of the state legislature to assist in the study of methods of taxation in the state. Particular attention was given the new personal property tax, which has failed to produce the results expected when the law was changed a year ago.

At that conference Irwin suggested that taxpayers be granted 30 days grace after the final date for payment of taxes before being subjected to a penalty. This, he believes, would not only stimulate payment of taxes, but would offer relief to taxpayers at a time when most of them are finding it difficult to raise sufficient funds with which to pay their taxes.

Walk into the county auditor's office in the court house at Lisbon any day and you will find a veritable beehive of industry. It is a busy scene from morning until night, and it has been that way for many weeks.

Just as busy a scene will be found in the office of County Treasurer John C. Litty. There, too, the staff of assistants has worked long hours for many weeks, and the end is not in sight for either office.

During the last week there has been a rush to pay real estate taxes and personal property taxes before the deadline—today.

And county officials have been agreeably surprised at the amount of money paid into the treasury within the last few days.

This shows, they say, that property owners want to pay their taxes if they can get the money. The great majority of delinquents are those who can't pay, rather than those who permit their taxes to become delinquent through refusal to pay.

Little Hope For 3 Airplane Victims

(By Associated Press)

NEODESHA, Kas., April 1.—Three of the eight men who escaped death in the airplane crash which terminated the homeward flight of the Winnipeg tollers, Canadian amateur basketball champions, remain in a critical condition at a hospital here.

Attending physicians virtually gave up hope that one of them, Andy Brown, 24, a forward on the team, would recover from injuries received when the crippled airliner buried his nose in a furrowed field five miles north of here yesterday.

Three of his companions died en route to the hospital and three others died in the operating room. The other two players whose condition was described as critical, were Ian Woolley, 25-year-old captain of the team, and Al Silverthorne, 29, who suffered fractures of the arms and legs.

March Temperature Listed As Normal

Copeland, but rain fall was above normal, precipitation for the month being 6.55 inches and on top of this there was a snowfall of 5.1 inches. During March there were rain, hail, sleet, snow and electrical storms, and only 24-hour period experienced all of these conditions.

Wheat plants suffered somewhat from the cool weather, and also from the heavy rains.

Four thunder storms were recorded during the month and heavy hail fell March 14 and 15. A lunar halo was observed March 13. Minimum temperature for the month was down to eight degrees above zero, while the maximum of 66 was recorded March 14.

FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

East Second and Lundy. Rev. Raymond D. Walter, minister; Miss Grace Orr, director of music; Miss Anna Cook, organist.

Do you want a church? Come to ours.

By all means, attend some church. If you have dropped away, go back to the church—and to God.

What paralyzes us today? Futility. Life has lost its luster. Its meaning is gone. We need Christ—and the way. This is Easter. Flowers bloom. Earth is waking to a new life. The church offers you a risen Lord of Life—a new life; of hope, not futility; radiance, not drabness; daring, not defeat. What a Savior! Will you rise to meet Him?

Morning worship at 10:55. Did you ever tell a lie? If not, you're a strange specimen and ought to be in a zoo. Ananias and Sapphira did just that—and were struck dead for it. The ages have heaped reproach upon them. No mother names her boy Ananias or her girl Sapphira. Was their offense so huge? Was it against man—or God? Any of us have done a hundred times over. Just what these two did. Is God yet pleased? What was their sin, the lie or the attitude it revealed? Does God care what we do with our possessions? This morning's sermon is "God's Partners." Come!

HOLY TRINITY ENGLISH LUTHERAN

East State st., at Woodlark ave. Rev. George D. Keister, pastor.

Judica Parsion Sunday, Sunday school 9:45. (Mark 7:1-37); Paul Wilms, Supt.

"Our Saviour did not come to redeem a particular class or race. No certain class or caste of society could claim that they held monopoly on Him. He came to save all mankind. Our Lord reveals His human nature from a Jewish virgin. Yet that did not prevent Him from including in His kinship, all races and nationalities. There was to be neither Greek, Jew, barbarian nor man to have the claim on His saving grace. He healed the sick among the Gentile He preached to them His gospel He shut no door to heaven to them."

"Prejudice or narrow sectarianism was not upheld by Jesus. Racial or national blood was no reason for favor or condemnation. The attitude toward God and life with the important matter. The Kingdom of God, is for all mankind; it is not in the power of man to shut the door to God's grace. The keep of the treasury of Christ's saving grace is divine not human."

Morning worship 11. Sermon: "The Invitation to Sacrifice."

The way of sacrifice is an easy way. Christ, our Saviour, did bear strong testimony to this fact. The way of sacrifice is not through a narrow path. The flesh of man will shrink from such a path. It is only when the will and strength are controlled by a higher power that the way of sacrifice is achieved. Jesus is not excelled by any other as regarding sacrifice. He lives His disciples to accept this principle in life.

The Lenten season ever reminds us of the price that Jesus paid, world redemption. The road to Calvary was one of divine sacrifice. The way of the Christian cannot avoid such a path. The true follower of Christ must not shrink from sacrifice but must accept it as a stepping stone to higher service."

THE FANS STILL BITE SOME REAL DIRTY WORK

INTERESTING to followers of that great fake racket, razzing, will be that narrative, on this sports page, telling of a championship ring battle between Champion Jim Browning and a young collegiate star. This article is interesting but more important than this interest is the fact that it is another bit of evidence supporting claims of many that wrestling is, at the present era, the nation's most fraudulent sport.

The flip-flops, phoney toeholds, arm locks and cradle holds, the air-plant spins and the deadly split are all part of routine drama, but such drama that attracts large throngs through entrance gates. Promoters are more convinced that if it were not for the occasional scamps and rascals and their engaging frauds, their acts of petty larceny the show would be pretty dull. Fans are always happy and contented when they are seated at a good, fixed fight, the outcome of which has been arranged in advance by bookies, cocaine smugglers and racketeers.

The fight and wrestling game—in only the larger cities, of course, for the American Legion and V. F. W. have prevented too good a series of shows in Salem for us to include their embroilings in the condemnation—is in a serious condition. Lacking good performers, the promoters and managers develop them by showmanship, by pre-determined performances that are exciting to watch and good drawing-cards. The hero is made to look like another Jack Dempsey in the battle against the one who, persuaded by greenbacks, is fated to lose. Razzers battle away like inebriated piano movers, with one coming through as a real "little threat," another London, Stecher.

SPORTS—2—THE DAY Y or THE UNIQUE part of it all is that nine out of every 11 fans know the razzle ruck is crooked. They hang from rafters and fight for tickets lest they fail to be present for the gypping. It's the same every place, Chicago New York, Akron, Los Angeles, Miami, any place that the wrestlers put on their show.

It's all a part of the psychology of balhoos. Advertise a ballet with the best dancers in the world; on the other hand, advertise a wrestling match as a no-account razzle show—see which attracts the biggest crowd. Watch the fans at a scientific fight—they're bored to tears, but when the fight is at the same time as the antagonists slap each other silly with an utter disregard for science. The fans go nuts, the full route.

Whether it assumes the major form of a nice lady stroking her husband lovingly with a hammer so that she and her boy friend can collect his insurance, or whether the picture shows a couple wrestling, pretending they are in mortal agony for the benefit of a pop-eyed and panting customer—the more brutal the racket, the more excited is the public.

THE RAZZLER who is a good actor is the one who gets into the big money. If he loses, they don't hold it against him—they rank him on the manner and grace of his going, for the books held that it was his night to lose and he had to go it. But woe to him if he fell ungraciously. He must make it look right, if nothing else.

Suffice to say, many of them do it for wrestling or should we say razzing, is so easy to fake. When one razzler clamps a hold on his foe it is hard to tell whether he is applying punishable pressure or whether he is merely feeling his pulse. But as long as the opponent registers a few moans, groans, and more moans, the customer is satisfied. The spectator is up in his chair shouting, "Kill the big bum!" True, when the boys dive through the ropes onto concrete floors into chairs deserted by the alarmed occupants, it can hardly be called phony but neither can it be called wrestling.

The more feeling of you fans may take comfort in the fact that gentlemen who become wrestlers are usually well equipped to land on concrete floors. They protect themselves from bodily injury by hitting the floor with their skulls first.

PARIS—The Louvre has just purchased a Corot painting for $8,440 along with several others valued at from $720 to $2,400. The title of the $2,400 canvas is "Atelier du Maître en 1865." The others are paintings which were done by Corot in 1864 and 1865.

Crowning a Speed Queen

This pretty ceremony was recently performed at Long Beach, Cal., when a bevy of mermaids staged a coronation to formally present Loretta Turnbull, world's champion speedboat racer, with her golden crown as Queen of Speedboats. The event was held preparatory to the Champions' Day races over the Olympic course at Long Beach.

TAMPA—Minus Manager Donie Bush, who left for Cincinnati last night for treatment of an infected foot, the Reds went to St. Petersburg today to take on the Boston Braves in an exhibition game. St. Johnson will pitch.

Red Lucas, who has been kept from the mound because of minor injuries, expects to hurl three innings against the Braves tomorrow.

"I'll bet you my favorite winning pennant in March," he shouted, "because they've got a lot of guys that talk louder than I do."
"Well, from now on, I'm telling the world we're not such a bunch of mugs ourselves. I claim we're good—plenty good."

DALLAS—Schoolboy Rowe and Fred Marberry were slated to share the pitching chore today in the fifth game of the Detroit Tigers' series with the New York Giants. Each team has won two games thus far.

Good Act Put On By Youthful Star In Razzle Battle

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 1—The embarrassment of the football star who ran the wrong way with the ball could not have been greater than that of Al Getzweh, a comparative unknown in the wrestling business, when he suddenly found himself face to face with the title worn by Jim Browning in a recent match.

Browning, the big Missouri farm boy, who is looked upon as champion in certain parts of the country, had been "defending" his title for some 30 minutes, as is the custom of wrestling champions.

Several times he had "struck with the speed of a cobra"—as he press agents say—and twined his powerful legs about Getzweh's mid-section. Each time it had looked as if Getzweh must flop over his back, or in mortal pain and anguish. But in mortal danger, as also is a wrestling custom, he had broken the hold and turned savagely on Browning.

It was in one of these attacks that he tossed all of Browning's 230 pounds over his shoulder and permitted the champion to fly through space, a very common antic among the pachyderms. But as Browning fell it was his head and not his shoulders that hit, and the champion floated off in a daze, as it were. He was there for Getzweh to take. All the Manchester, Conn., youth had to do was to go over and sit down on Browning and the title was his.

It was the big moment in Getzweh's career, and one for which there had been no rehearsal, but he was equal to it. Close followers of the business say this sole act stamped him as one of the "finds" of the season.

Without a moment's hesitation Getzweh, too, was in a dazed condition. It was clear the blow on the head suffered by Browning, also had left the challenger in a groggy condition. Then, as Browning cleared, Getzweh gave off the grunt that is common to mat warriors, and dove. His body sailed neatly over the prostrate Browning, passed on and skittered out through the ropes.

Getzweh had shown his mettle. He had refused to take the title by any underhanded, unorthodox, manlike tricks. When he clambered back into the ring, knowing what he had done, and that it was but a few minutes until the "champion" had Getzweh firmly clamped on his back.

The 2000 fans who witnessed this showing of fine histrionic ability on Getzweh's part were anything but pleased. They howled their derision. It is understood, however, they will be back again for the next "title" match.

HEUSER AGAIN TRIMS EBBETS

German Light Heavyweight Wins Right to Another Crack at Rosenbloom's Crown

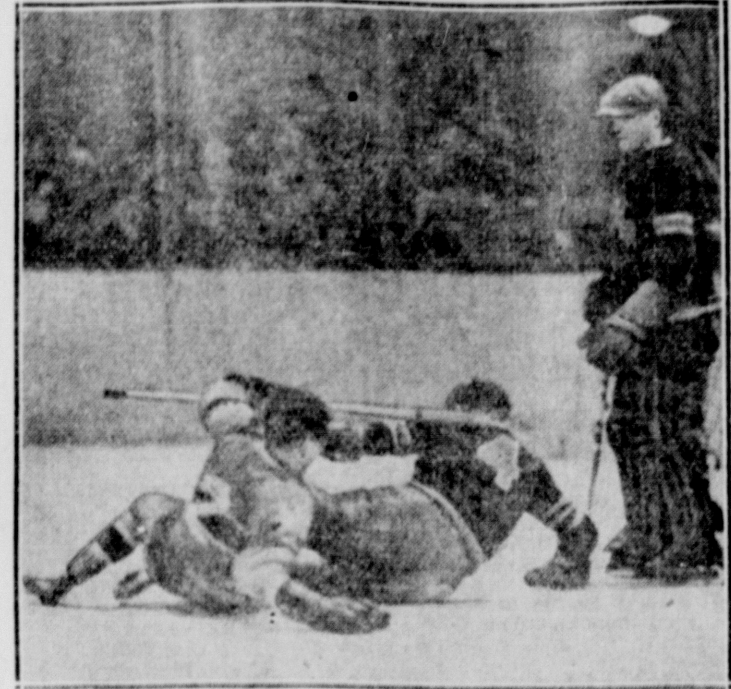

NEW YORK, April 1—The German menace of the light heavyweights, Adolph Heuser, has all but won himself another crack at Maxey Rosenbloom's world title.

For the second time in less than a month, Heuser handed Harry Ebbets of New York, a beating in a ten round bout in Madison Square Garden last night and a return match with Rosenbloom will be his principle reward. Rosenbloom won their first 15 round tussle a couple of weeks ago by a close decision.

Heuser outpointed Ebbets by a wide margin in a slugfest. The action pancher won seven rounds with the third even and the fourth and tenth going to Ebbets.

A newcomer to garden fans, Art Lasky, lanky heavyweight from Minneapolis, punched out a decision over Hans Birkie, rugged German in the eight round semi-final.

As Rangers Won Stanley Cup Tilt

Here is a thrilling moment of action in the hockey game between the New York Rangers and Montreal Canadiens, at Madison Square Garden, in the first of the play-offs for the Stanley Cup. Mantha, Canadiens, spills with Seibert, Rangers, in the mouth of the Canadian goal after Mantha had rushed to the aid of Goalie Hainsworth who was gallantly defending his citadel. The New Yorkers clipped their Canadian rivals by a score of 5-2.

Passing of College Football Predicted By Iowa Professor

INTERCOLLEGIATE football is on the way out, baseball went long ago, and basketball will be the next to go.

This is the hypothesis of Dr. I. N. McCash, president of Phillips University, Enid, Okla., on which that institution banished the intercollegiate grid game.

"Out," declared Dr. McCash, "in favor of the professional game."

Added stress on intramural sports, coupled with compulsory physical education based on individual examination of students, will be the program at Phillips.

"Phillips is definitely out of the Big Four conference as far as football is concerned," said Dr. McCash. "But we are not abandoning the game—merely intercollegiate football. And we will still compete in intercollegiate basketball, tennis and track."

Olga Autry, director of physical education at the university, was named to head the new program of physical education, intramural and intercollegiate sports to be started next September.

Phillips was one of the first to cut intercollegiate football. The action had the full support and approval of the board of trustees. Enrollment at the institution is about 1,000, and in former years the school has ranked high in athletics.

"Eight or nine years ago college football began to wane," said the president, "and professional teams began their rise. More recently, professional basketball teams have begun to take the foreground. The spectator's attitude is: If we're going to a game, why not see the best?"

IN FURTHER SUPPORT of his position Dr. McCash cited the recent ruling of the North Central association that schools must cease contributing, directly or indirectly, to the athlete's financial support. The university will make no promises of assistance, not even free tuition, beyond that extended the

Bewhiskered Babe

Even the luxuriant crop of shrubbery adorning his famous face is insufficient to hide the identity of the one and only Babe Ruth, king swat-smith of the New York Yankees. The Bam donned the facial spinach in order to put himself in a proper frame of mind for the recent game the Yankees played with the House of David nine at St. Petersburg, Fla.

Outcome of Campaign Uncertain With Cubs, Pirates Heading List

The following review of the National league pennant prospects is the last of a series analyzing the big league baseball outlook.

BY ALAN GOULD,
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 1—There seems to be no harm in trying to "dope" the National league pennant race, but reservations are attached to any calculations about what may happen. At least five and possibly seven of the eight clubs figure to offer a wide variety of arguments in the 1933 race.

Last spring the Cardinals, then on top of the baseball world, and the Giants, were picked by a majority of baseball critics to finish one-two. They wound up in a tie for sixth place. McGraw passed from the picture while his team was still in last place.

Cubs, Pirates Top List

That's the way things are apt to happen, unexpectedly, and it is among the reasons why no great amount of family plate so far has been wagered on the professional odds making the Pittsburgh Pirates and Chicago Cubs joint favorites.

The Cubs emerged from the last world series with very little prestige and their stock tumbled again this week as a result of a fractured leg for Kiki Cuyler, fleet outfielder. It places more responsibility on the bat and ability of Floyd (Babe) Herman.

If Herman recovers his Brooklyn slugging form, if Frank Demaree can plug the outfield gap, and if Cub pitchers like Young Lon Warneke duplicate their 1932 performances, the champions may repeat.

Otherwise it looks like a big year for the Pirates or one of the so-called "dark horses" in the race, including the Phillies, the Cardinals, and the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Bucs Have Lindstrom

Pittsburgh came off with first prize, Freddie Lindstrom, in one of the winters biggest trading sessions. The former Giant's presence in the outfield with the Waners boys gives the Bucs the strongest outer trio in the league. The team, too, is blessed with a hustling spirit born of the sensational development of youthful stars like Piet, Vaughan and Grace.

The Cardinals, with sharpshooters like Dean, Derringer, Carleton, Walker and Hallahan, to say nothing of Vance, Haines, Lindsay and Mooney, must be reckoned with, no matter what the club's infield misfits may be. But for the loss of Shortstop Charley Gelbert, from a gunshot wound, the Red Birds easily could be conceded an even chance to win their fifth pennant in eight years.

Unless Hornsby can show a comeback, which appears doubtful, the Accompanied by detectives, Horace C. The indictment grew out of testimony given before the Senate Committee investigating the banking and stock market situation. Doors were being closed to them all around. Jewish shop owners yesterday were ordered to discharge Jewish employees.

The National Socialist Physicians' society issued the following statement:

Ran Doctors, Druggists
"No German must ever go to a Jewish doctor again for treatment or buy at Jewish apothecaries. It is untrue that Jewish doctors, dentists and druggists are indispensable or better than Germans."

The Municipal Sick Relief Insurance society issued a statement forbidding members from receiving treatment from Jewish physicians or patronizing Jewish druggists, opticians, dentists and massage or Jewish owned medical baths, x-ray institutions and clinics.

Dr. Goebbels further warned that "if New York and London boycott German goods," the government will "take its gloves off" in handling the Jewish problem.

Chancellor Hitler's government, which had remained silent while the boycott plans were formulated by the part, was placed in the po-

Royal Family of Stage, Screen will Appear In State Theater Feature, "Rasputin"

LIONEL, ETHEL and JOHN BARRYMORE in "RASPUTIN AND THE EMPRESS"

"RASPUTIN and the Empress," probably the most discussed motion picture of the year, will open at the State theater Sunday for a three-day run.

Appearing together for the first time on the screen the royal family of stage and screen—Lionel, Ethel and John Barrymore—enact the leading roles.

Supporting Players
In support of the stars there is a fine and talented group of players which includes Ralph Morgan, said to give an excellent performance—you saw him in "Strange Interlude"; Dian Wynyard, who, from her work in this film has been awarded starring roles in several of the year's best pictures, one of them being opposite John Barrymore; Tad Alexander, gifted nine-year-old youngster, and C. Henry Gordon.

The film is said to present with fidelity the personal details of the life of Russia's "holy devil," Rasputin, from his birth in a peasant community in Siberia through his rise to power, his association with the Czarina and his mysterious control of the Romanoff court.

John has the role of Prince Chegodieff, intimate friend of the Czar and Czarina. Ethel makes her initial appearance on the screen as the Czarina while Lionel enacts the difficult and unusual part of Rasputin.

Other Attractions For Week
From the heavy drama and exciting scenes of the former picture, there is light comedy and romance in "Pleasure Cruise," scheduled at the State for Wednesday and Thursday.

That immensely clever comedian, Roland Young, along with Genevieve Tobin, Ralph Forbes, Una O'Connor and Minna Gombell compose the cast.

It depicts the "goings on" in a luxury liner that sets out with a group of merry makers, destined for pleasure on the high seas.

Friday and Saturday bring to the State a new film entitled "Bondage" with Alexander Kirkland and Dorothy Jordan in leading roles.

Today's Features
The attraction today shown "Sailors Luck," with Jimmy Dunn and Sally Eilers at the State, and "Terror Trail" with Tom Mix and his wonder horse, Tony, at the Grand.

The Grand feature will also play there Sunday.

The second episode in that nerve-racking serial, "The Last of the Mohicans," will also be shown at the Grand today and tomorrow.

Animals Treated Unkindly, But Often It's Not Intended

Why is it necessary to urge people to be kind to animals, asked a well known radio announcer in his announcement of "Be Kind to Animals Anniversary," which this year is being observed nationally from April 17 to 23. The answer to the question comes from C. S. French, officer of the Salem Humane society, who says:

"There are few people who are intentionally unkind to animals, but I wonder if many realize the suffering endured before meat and fowl is delivered to the dining table."

Many Casualties Reported
"Though stockmen and poultry farmers may meet all the conditions imposed in the shipment of their product to the market places, and though practically all of these shipments are inspected by humane society officers, there are still revealed hundreds of thousands of casualties annually."

"Through the efforts of humane societies crates must be of regulation size to permit the animals to stand upright and the number allowed in each size crate is limited. Food and water must be supplied at specified intervals. These regulations are generally complied with. But still it seems impossible to do away entirely with injury and suffering because of lack of consideration on the part of those handling shipments."

"Frequently great trucks are seen carting poultry along city streets or country roads with crate piled upon crate over jolty roads, where each jolt means agony to some of those victims on the way to slaughter."

Injured In Unloading
"In the unloading of the crates they are often dropped heavily, with a resultant injury to head, wing or limb of the fowl, which too, are often left confined for a considerable period without food or water before being butchered."

"Be Kind to Animals anniversary" was inaugurated by the American Humane association and affiliated and unaffiliated anti-cruelty societies to ask more kindly consideration of all animals. It is true that the average person has a kindly feeling for animals, but it is equally true that thoughtlessness and carelessness are still responsible for much needless suffering among them."

100 Join In Chase
Quickly gathering up rifles, shotguns and revolvers, more than 100 residents of the Kensington, East Rochester and Hanoverton district joined in the chase of the five men after they were forced to abandon their automobile on the Augusta rd. Salem police and firemen also assisted in the hunt. A Salem man, Fred Smith, aided directly in the capture of four of the bandits.

The chase started after the five men drove up to the Bee Hive gasoline station, Carrollton, where they ordered 13 gallons of gasoline and two quarts of oil. They drove away after forcing the attendant into the station office at the point of a revolver. They were refueling the automobile, they told McFadden, prior to the planned holdup of the Kensington bank after which they had figured on proceeding to Alliance to the Mount Union bank.
